Patient Information and Informed Consent for Telemental Health Service

Telemental Health is the delivery of psychotherapeutic services using interactive audio and visual electronic systems and/or by the electronic transmission of information where the provider and the patient are not in the same physical location.

The interactive electronic systems incorporate network and software security protocols to protect patient information and safeguard the data exchanged.

Potential benefits

- A computer and a webcam can provide live video conferencing using software that can be free to patients.
- Telemental health provides convenience and increased accessibility to mental health care for patients who are unable to be treated face to face due to various reasons such as living in remote locations, temporary circumstances such as being away at college, an extended stay away from home, or having a physical limitation preventing travel to our office.

Potential Risks

As with any mental health procedure, there may be potential risks associated with the use of telemental health. These risks include, but may not be limited to:

- Information transmitted electronically may not be sufficient (e.g., poor resolution of video) to allow for appropriate decision making by the psychiatrist or therapist.
- The provider is not able to provide every type of mental health treatment using interactive electronic equipment.
- The provider may not be able to provide for or arrange for emergency care that I may require, in cases of connection failure.
- Delays in mental health evaluation and treatment may occur due to deficiencies or failures of the equipment.
- Although unlikely, security protocols can fail, causing a breach of privacy of my confidential medical information.
- A lack of access to all the information that might be available in a face-to-face visit but not in a telemental health session may result in errors in clinical judgment.

Alternatives to the use of telemental health

- Face-to-face session in the mental health provider's office.
- Referral to another mental health provider.
